Chapter 33

Vavaaiku – Angling with a swinging bait

Enoch Horai Magum & Shalom Magum

(1)	O kaku vagana to dao raara bona vavaaiku na pakupaku raara namana, beara hae batara teo sinivi.	The kind of fishing that we call vavaaiku 'letting it swing', we do it in the ocean while we are sitting in the canoe.
(2)	Na pakupaku raara bona kanono ae a iri ae sa taba sa ponisi mene dee gunaha bona kanono.	We do it with a string and a hook and something heavy to get the string down.
(3)	Beara mei rara tea tahoa, amaa taba vaarii toro vaamatatopo.	Before we set off, these things must be prepared.
(4)	A kanono to vavaaiku ni raara na paku vonaen:	The string that we use for angling is made as follows:
(5)	Eara na kisi ni roho rara a ta booru tea kanono, eara repaa kisi mana nia iri putaa.	We first tie a piece of lead to the string and then we tie the hook below it.
(6)	Ge beara rake, eara repaa kisi nia iri gina bea ta booru en putaa.	Or if we want, we tie the hook on top while the piece of lead is below the hook.
(7)	Teo kaku vagana vai, eara na beana rarai.	For this kind of fishing, we bait it (the hook).
(8)	Eara he toro beana nio urita, iobo ge a iana komana vahaa, beara peepee varutarutaa e.	We must bait it with an octopus, a sea-saussage, or even a fish when we have cut it up into little pieces.

(9)	Bea maamihu taba vai matatopo, eara repaa hua hiava namana.	When everything is prepared, we paddle up to the deep sea.
(10)	Eara repaa vaagunaha a kanono, vaantee koa tobina, eara repaa vaabunobuno koa ni rae, a beana re potee voen na vavaaiku nana.	Then we let the string down, but only half way, and then move it to and fro so that the bait looks like swinging.
(11)	Teebona to kahi avuhu ae tara mau o iana bona, eori repaa ma agomo bona beana.	So the fish will smell and see it, and then they come and swallow the bait.
(12)	Beara haraa voen na rahi batana bona kanono, eara repaa vaatasu hiava nia kanono,	When we feel that a fish is pulling the string, we fling the string upwards,
(13)	a iri repaa kao hopo rivona iana, eara repaa rahi hiava e kou.	so that the hook moves into the mouth of the fish, and then we pull it up.
(14)	Eara na antee rara tea paku o kaku vagana vai tea bon, tea roava, teo tarahi ge teo puhana.	We can do this kind of fishing at night, during the day, when the tide is ebbing or at high tide.
